ZEPELINS BURN 90 BOMBS IN LONDON, KILLING 4 PERSONS

One Infant, One Boy, One Woman and a Man Victims of First Raid on Britain's Capital—Many Houses Burned

ITALIANS CAPTURE 37 MORE VILLAGES

Invasion of Trent Meeting With Success According to Claims of Italian War Office—Turks Lose 40,000 Men

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, June 1.—In the Zeppelin raid on London last night ninety bombs were dropped. Four persons were killed and others injured. One infant, one boy, one woman and a man slain. Official announcement was made today that no public buildings were damaged.

The Italian army invading the Austrian province of Trent from the east, having previously captured the town of Cortina, sixty miles northeast of the city of Trent, now has occupied thirty-seven villages in the surrounding district. The Austrians continue to fight, presumably having determined to give battle on fields of their own choosing.

The Austrian city of Rovereto, whose elaborate defenses are relied on to check the Italians from pushing up the Adige river valley and besieging Trent, now is threatened by the invaders.

Rovereto lies thirteen miles south of Trent, capture of which is one of Italy's chief objectives. An Italian statement says the Italians have occupied the important heights of Zuma, dominating Rovereto.

The other important Italian move, across the eastern border, which is the capture of Trieste as its apparent objective, has been slowed up by swollen rivers, the official statement says.

Official statements from Constantinople indicate that the fighting on Gallipoli peninsula has settled down to the trench warfare familiar in other fields of the war. Only small engagements in limited areas are shown.

The Turkish claim to have repulsed several attacks, but the French statement asserts the allies are making gains on the western front and in the Gallipoli campaign the situation is virtually unchanged.

Serbia apparently has begun a new campaign. Its army, having been reorganized during the last winter, is active in the mountainous regions of the Balkans.

Transportation of Turkish reinforcements to the Dardanelles from Constantinople is said to have been interrupted by the operations of British submarines cruising in front of the city. It is reported that the Turkish liner Salim, formerly the German cruiser Goeben, virtually has been cut off from the Dardanelles.

London Tells of Raid On City by Zeppelins

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, June 1.—Ninety bombs were dropped in the raid on London last night by Zeppelins. Four persons were killed and a few were injured.

No public building was damaged. This information was given out officially by the War Office.

The official statement reads: "An amplification of the information which appeared in this morning's newspapers, the following particulars of last night's Zeppelin raid in the Metropolitan area are now available for publication."

What Will U. S. Do? Is Question, French Papers Are Asking

Berlin Answer to American Protest Over Sinking of Lusitania Called "Another German Diplomatic Blunder"

(By Associated Press.) PARIS, June 1.—Under the caption "What will America do?" the French press comments on Germany's reply to the United States' note of protest regarding the sinking of the Lusitania. All papers agree in characterizing the German answer as another "blunder."

The French press declares Germany is endeavoring to open a controversy to gain time. The Matin says the Imperial chancellery invites the United States to abandon her naval supremacy, in consideration of which the German admiral would "cease assassinating the passengers and crews of unarmed ships."

The Journal believes Germany is not withdrawing the calm moderation of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan who have resolved not to be forced into anything precipitate, will end by exhausting Germany's resources.

The afternoon papers of Paris, commenting on the German reply to the American note on the Lusitania, unite in recognizing the gravity of the moment for the United States.

Americans Fleeing Germany And Entering Switzerland

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, June 1.—During the past few days a positive exodus of Americans from Germany to Switzerland has been taking place, says the Morning Post's Berlin correspondent. "Many of the arrivals have been independent business men," he says. "They declare popular feeling against Americans in some places makes it intolerable, if not unsafe, for them to remain."

Capt. Edwards, Noted English Polo Player, Is Killed at Ypres

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, June 1.—Captain E. Noel Edwards, the noted English polo player, whose death from gas poisoning in the fighting at Ypres was announced in London yesterday, made many friends in this city when he was here as a member of the British polo teams playing at White City during the 1912-13 international camp matches.

The acquaintances the English army officer made on his first trip led to an open reception for him on his return. He became very friendly with the members of the American team captained by Foxhall Keene and was guest of honor at a number of dinners.

Idea of World Peace But a Beautiful Dream, Noted Professor Says

(By Associated Press.) CHICAGO, June 1.—President J. C. Jessup, president of the University of Chicago, known internationally as an advocate of peace, today declared in a memorial day speech Monday that world peace is only the dream of a visionary.

"The situation of the world today," he said, "shows us very clearly that many of the beautiful ideas of peace are simply dreams. They are not attainable."

The professor's speech was a very effective speech on the chautauqua platform, but they do not accord with the harsh realities of life.

RAILBOARDS ARE COMMON CARRIERS, IS REPORT

Will Rule Buses, Come Under Jurisdiction of Commission and Are Subject to Regulation, It Is Said

DECISION IN CASE IS EXPECTED NEXT WEEK

Members of Body Have Gathered Much Data on General Jitney Situation Since Hearing in May

That the Georgia railroad commission will reach the decision in executive session next week that "jitney" buses come under its jurisdiction, and are therefore subject to regulation by the commission, is the information received by a Journal reporter from a reliable source.

Since the "jitney" hearing before the commission during the early part of May, the members have been busy collecting data bearing on the situation from every possible angle. Quite an interesting document relating to "jitneys" from the "community" standpoint has been received from the Oakland, Cal., chamber of commerce.

From The Journal's information there is every reason to reach the conclusion that there will be a unanimous opinion from the commission placing "jitneys" under its supervision. That will follow, of course, regulations from the commission, under which these new common carriers will be forced to operate.

It is believed that the commission will take the view that the "jitney" so far as its functions are concerned, cannot be classed with taxis and horse cabs, but rather with other modes of transportation that move over a specified route.

It is argued that the taxi or horse cab contracts with a passenger for his exclusive transportation to a designated place for a specified sum and has no fixed route, while the "jitney" is operated on a fixed route and carries passengers, performs the same service as common carriers now under the jurisdiction of the commission.

The formal decision of the commission should be expected next week. It should be expected next week. It should be expected next week.

SAVANNAH JITNEYS WIN INJUNCTION SUIT

Judge Charlton Restrains City from Enforcing Municipal Ordinance

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) SAVANNAH, Ga., June 1.—Savannah jitneys won a decision in the superior court today when Judge Charlton granted a temporary injunction against the city from enforcing a municipal ordinance which prohibited the operation of jitneys.

The decision was based on the ground that the ordinance was unconstitutional and void. The court held that the ordinance was an attempt to regulate a business which was not subject to municipal control.

TORPEDO JUST MISSED NORWEGIAN STEAMSHIP

Captain of Kronstad Says Missile Crossed Ship's Wake Barely Six Feet Astern

(By Associated Press.) GALVESTON, Texas, June 1.—Captain Meisel, of the Norwegian steamer Kronstad, which arrived here today from Arctur, told the story of a narrow escape from attack by a German submarine. On May 5 while the Kronstad was about 40 miles off Cork, a German submarine appeared.

The captain said he ordered his engines stopped and then saw a torpedo fired at his vessel. The torpedo, he said, came within six feet of the ship's stern.

Wilson Begins Preparation of His Second Note to Germany

"IN SELF-DEFENSE!"

Executive Confidential Nation Is Backing Him After Reading Editorial Comments of the Newspapers

BRIEF AND EMPHATIC STATEMENT IS EXPECTED

Warning Notice Is Also Prepared for Warring Factions in Mexico After Situation There Is Discussed

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, June 1.—After more than two hours' discussion by President Wilson and the cabinet over the international problems with respect to Germany and Mexico confronting the United States, preparation of a second note to Germany, which means a warning statement to the actions in Mexico was completed.

An announcement was made further than that the president's statement warning the Mexican leaders to improve conditions will be made public tomorrow morning.

All the cabinet officers were especially reserved over what had been said about Germany's reply to the Lusitania note. It generally was understood, however, that while no final conclusion was reached, the president listening to varied expressions of views, the government's course would be shaped by light of tomorrow.

The prevailing belief after the cabinet meeting was that a note, probably very brief, would be directed to Germany, many asking whether the imperial government intends by its note to disregard fundamental principles of international law. If Germany's answer to that would be negative, the president would have his cabinet at his elbow.

That view found expression in quarters close to the White House, and was looked on as the president's policy of the American government's policy.

Chief Counsel Bennett, the German minister, who was here today, was not, unless he brings some new proposal, differing from the reply given to his letter, to be discussed today in well informed quarters, that the president will not affect the mind of the new American note, although the president's personal views. It was stated that the secretary of state, ambassador and might have some influence in Berlin on the reaction of the forthcoming cabinet.

Three weeks ago today the president decided to send to Germany a note demanding full reparation for the loss of the Lusitania. The note was the British steamer Lusitania was torpedoed without warning, and asking Germany to make good the loss of the ship and the lives of the crew.

The president said the American rejoinder would not be many days away. He said he had received the official text last night and of his intention to have a preliminary statement issued by the state department.

His close advisers say he regarded it as a true reflection of the position of the country and will endeavor by his actions to express it.

The president indicated in his speech yesterday at Arlington that he hoped to see the world in a new situation. While he wants to send a note within a day or two to indicate to Germany the earnest purpose of the United States to have a prompt understanding on the important issues raised without protracted discussions, he indicated that he would not discuss the matter with the cabinet and legal officials.

Secretary Redfield was the only member of the cabinet who had not been at the White House since the week to be seen.

For the first time in several weeks the meeting was held in the cabinet room in the executive offices. Recently the meetings have been held in the president's study.

An embargo against exports of food to Mexico and against imports of food from the United States was proposed in relieving famine conditions below the Rio Grande was proposed today by the United States.

MUST DECIDE VALUE OF BAGGAGE CHECKED

Cummins Amendment to Interstate Commerce Law Is Effective Tonight

Persons checking baggage on railroad trains after midnight, June 1, must declare the value of that baggage to comply with the provisions of the Cummins amendment to the interstate commerce laws, and the baggage master—already a man of many troubles—is laying in a new style of explosives in anticipation of the present system of the railroads, whereby they assume a general liability of $100 for each article checked, the railroads shall require passengers to appraise at the correct value their baggage, and where this value exceeds $100 a rate of 10 cents per $100 shall be charged. This new system of insurance fee and while it imposes a considerable tax upon the employer of the baggage trunks, it is a boon to the traveling public and to the railroads, for it permits the former to collect full value for lost trunks, and to the latter, it saves the railroad much litigation.

Stated in held upon the correct valuation of baggage. If you, for instance, check a trunk containing a diamond brooch valued at $100, you value your trunk at only $100, and should that trunk be lost and later found to contain the $100 value, you are liable to go to jail. Also, should you overestimate the value of your baggage you are liable.

Railway officials are not altogether sanguine that this new regulation will prove popular with the traveling public. What will be said of the new law and the procedure, is horrible to even think of. It is not so hard to check a trunk in a hurry, but it is a very different matter to remember accurately the collective value of the articles contained therein. And what if you have a long line of fellow sufferers just behind you, also in a hurry to catch trains, one is not in just the mood to add a dozen pairs of silk socks, one shaving set, wife's dinner gown, one dress suit, two Palm Beaches, one collar, one tie, one hat, one suitcase, one cigarette case, and that very "pretty" little "bitch" of a suitcase, from which you express the sum in dollars and cents.

Just a gleam of light is seen in the paragraph which permits your valet, maid, butler, second cousin or office boy to act as your agent in packing, but here new terror lies, for this agent may declare a wrong value. No provision is made for agents to serve in a prison sentence in case of a false declaration.

One other ray of hope is seen. Just at present the law will only be applied to interstate travel. Baggage masters are said to be looking for other joys.

NORTH GEORGIA SCENES SHOWN IN "PLUNDERER"
Movie at the Strand Theater Monday and Tuesday Was Taken at Dahlonega

Actual gold mining scenes filmed in north Georgia are shown in "The Plunderer," the Fox film feature from the book by Roy Norton, the attraction at the Strand Theater Monday and Tuesday of this week and will be run again by request next Monday.

All but interior scenes of this photograph were taken at Dahlonega. The Fox film company sent down over 100 people, headed by Manager Edgar Lewis and including William Farnum, screen star, and many other movie favorites.

It had been decided to make the picture in north Georgia, and only at the last moment were plans shifted. The directors heard about Dahlonega's gold mines and changed cars at Gainesville, arriving at the north Georgia town on March 15 and staying there five weeks.

During that time many scenes were filmed on Pindley ridge, where Charles Sumner of the Pindley Ridge Mining and Power company, aided in the making of the picture, on High Grade road, the mine from which over $300,000 worth of gold has been taken, and a scene depicting the mine.

"Bully" Freshy, one of the stars, panned $40 worth of gold in one afternoon while the picture was being made at Deep Horse Cut, Consolidated mine and other well known Georgia bonanzas.

Actual underground work with Georgia miners washing the gold, is shown in the picture, and many local characters are used.

Dahlonega sent down a delegation of over thirty to see the picture at the Strand Tuesday, and more are coming next week.

Dahlonega and the Fox actors appear to have formed a mutual admiration society. William Farnum was so keen on north Georgia that he is going to spend his summer vacation in Dahlonega, and the entire cast of the picture, some back to back to stage another picture, during the spring stay here.

The picture, which is being shown in town and visitors, and when the film people took their departure they were escorted to the train and serenaded by the Dahlonega college band.

"Wormwood," another Fox film, starring Edith Kaituma, with scenes taken in New Orleans, is coming to the Strand soon.

Blaze in Souvenir Store Sends Crowds Into Streets in Night Dress

Another Mitchell street fire, early Tuesday morning sent between eighty and ninety guests of the Terminal hotel piling into the street in all stages of disarray.

The blaze was at 71 West Mitchell, a basement store occupied by the Broadway Souvenir company and directly underneath the hotel. Smoke was discharged pouring through the sidewalk entrance about 3:30 o'clock, and the alarm was turned in.

Thick clouds of smoke filtering up into the hotel caused intense excitement among the guests. The street was packed with people, forced to flee in their nightclothes. However, the flames were quickly extinguished. There was less than $1,000 damage to the stock of the souvenir company and slight damage to water and smoke to the hotel and a soda font on the corner of Mitchell and Madison avenues.

This is the third fire in three months in the neighborhood of the Terminal hotel. The last fire, which occurred above Jacobs' pharmacy, directly across from the Terminal hotel, was burned out and a week later three stores near the corner of Mitchell and Forsyth streets were burned from fire.

Parent-Teachers Elect
Mrs. Clarence Henry was named president of the Parent-Teachers' club of the Grant Park school at the annual meeting Monday, which closed a very successful year for the organization.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Davis, vice president; Mrs. Glen, secretary; and Mrs. Hope, treasurer.

WITH THE FRENCH WOUNDED
The Woman's Sacrifice

Paris, June 1, 8:30 P. M.—Away from the battlefield one sees war stripped of its glamor. We see chronic diseases of nurses who are on duty day and night. There is devotion, self-sacrifice, suffering, patriotism—qualities which only a great war and its terrible consequences can inspire to the highest development. The women everywhere are helping and everywhere one sees self-sacrifice and devotion to country.

The women of the United States do not know how fortunate they are. Here there are plenty of women who suffer in silence, whose strength is a source of proportion to their ambition. Their hands are tied by some chronic disease common to womanhood; that weak back, accompanied by pain here and there, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, maybe fainting spells or spasms, are things you can do nothing about. You may be growing from girlhood into womanhood, passing from womanhood to motherhood, and later suffering from that change which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any of all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and restorative for such purposes as these.

As a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has successfully treated more cases the past fifty years than any other known remedy. When you feel dull, headachy, backachy, dizzy, or perhaps hot flashes, or if there is nothing you can do to relieve your condition, you can find prompt relief in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is sold by medicine dealers, or trial box by mail from Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of 50 cents, or one dollar for large box.—(Adv.)

ZEPPELINS HURL 90 BOMBS INTO LONDON. KILLING 4 PERSONS

As far as has at present been ascertained, one infant, one boy, one man and one woman were killed, and another woman was seriously injured, that her life is despaired of. A few other private citizens were seriously injured, but the precise number has not yet been ascertained.

"Adequate police arrangements, including the calling out of special constables enabled the situation to be kept thoroughly in hand at all times. So far as the public here had been allowed to know, a general lull prevails on the different military fronts. It is apparent, nevertheless, that fighting still is proceeding along the San, in the vicinity of Triest, Austria. There has been neither confirmation nor denial of the reported Russian successes there.

An official announcement from Nish indicates a resumption of active hostilities against Austria, which had been suspended during the Italian-Austrian negotiations.

The near east appears again to be in a ferment with a Bulgarian-Rumanian conflict reported as among the probabilities of the near future, and Constantinople said to be excited over the recent British submarine raid and the dismantling of the cruiser Sultan Selim, formerly the Goeben.

According to an Athens dispatch there is a party in the Turkish capital which is demanding the release of the straits and immediate peace overtures.

Italians Capture 37 Villages in Trent

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 1.—(Via Paris.)—Italian troops have occupied thirty-seven villages surrounding Cortina, in the Austro-Italian valley. The troops which occupied these towns constitute the Italian army invading the province of Trent from the east, simultaneously with invasions from the south and west. Cortina, occupied by the Italians was announced yesterday, lies sixty miles northeast of Trent.

The municipal authorities of Cortina today sent a telegram to King Victor Emmanuel, expressing their loyalty to him.

Turks Lose 40,000 Men In Defense of Gallipoli

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 1.—A prisoner captured a fortnight ago in the Dardanelles says that the Turkish losses in the defense of their positions on the Gallipoli peninsula were at that time over 40,000 men.

This information was given in an official statement in London today.

French Battleship Destroys German Consulate at Haifa

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 1.—The German consulate at Haifa, in Syria on the bay of Acre, having invited Turkish troops to commit acts hostile to the French, a French cruiser sailed up to Haifa and by a few subsequent shots destroyed the building.

French ministry of marine, which reads: "The ministry of marine, having been advised that the German consul at Haifa had invited Turkish troops to open fire on a boat carrying a flag of truce and to violate the burial place in Haifa of a number of soldiers of the army of Napoleon, scattering at the same time the remains of a French admiral interred there, sent a cruiser which destroyed the consulate. The Ottoman authorities were given previous notice of the reason for the bombardment. No other buildings were hit. Well directed shells destroyed the consulate."

This information is found in an official statement in London today.

Austrian Airmen Raid Two Italian Ports, Killing Two Men

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, June 1.—(Via Paris.)—Austrian aeroplanes have flown over Bari and Brindisi, seaports on the Adriatic in southern Italy. They threw bombs which killed one person and wounded two others.

Russian Boat Blown Up By Mine in North Sea

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 1.—The Russian boat Montevia was blown up by a mine and sank last night in the North Sea, twenty-five miles from Spurn. Her crew was killed. It was today by a Norwegian steamer.

Italian War Office Tells Of Important Victories

(By Associated Press.)

HOME, June 1.—Via Paris, June 1.—The following official statement was issued tonight: "The advance of our troops beyond the Tyrol-Trentino frontier continues and we have occupied the important heights of Zugna, about four miles north of Ala, which dominates Rovereto. Upon this height the Austrian army some time ago ordered a fortress built. "Our vigorous artillery action upon the plateau being followed up, the fire of the Austrian forces at Bellvedere diminished in intensity, and our infantry is solidly established upon the position. "Our front advancing in Val Sugana has arrived within five miles of Borgo, supported strongly on two slopes of the valley. The mountain of Bellvedere which dominates Fiera di Primieri in the Clason valley is also in our hands."

"A battalion and a half of Austrians with machine guns attacked our Alpine troops in a deficit of Monte Croce on the Carnia frontier May 30. The Austrians repulsed five spirited attacks delivered on after the other after which they took the offensive in a violent rain and thick fog, their assaults to flight. Our losses were slight."

"The rain continues on the Friuli frontier and the water courses are swollen but our troops advance in serene confidence to overcome their difficulty."

Daily Gains Are Claimed For Allies at Dardanelles

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 1.—The following official report on operations in the Dardanelles was given out here today: "The fighting continues in the Dardanelles for several days past to engagements over a limited area. These have taken place almost daily and they all have come to an end with gains for the allied troops. "On the western slope of the ravine of Kerever there a detachment of volunteers belonging to a colonial regiment captured by assault on Friday evening a small fort which the enemy had built at the left end of his line, and which dominated our trenches. Our men went forward with such speed that the defenders in large number, the purpose of which was to recapture the fort in question, were repulsed by us, and the enemy suffered heavy losses. "British troops also won a brilliant success in repulsing a violent assault near Gaba Tepe."

Violent Fighting Going On to North of Arras

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 1.—The French war office late afternoon gave out this report: "Violent fighting took place last night north of Arras. "East of the road from Aix-Neuville to Roubaix we made our way into a grove, and here they developed a hand to hand fight in which we had the advantage."

de Lorette we took possession of a German work. "A very violent fight developed around the river mill at Roubaix, in the course of which we took about sixty prisoners. "In the Vosges, near Pontenelle, north of St. Die, during the night of May 30-31, a German attack in which two companies participated was repulsed by us with heavy losses for the enemy."

Italian Squadron Escorts Fleet of Merchant Ships

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 1.—Having dispatch from Cetina says an Italian squadron has been ordered to escort back to Italy, Italian merchant ships now in Albanian ports. Two Italian aeroplanes cruising over the sea near Medua opened fire on an Austrian aeroplane which was flying over the warships.

British Submarine Interrupts Communications of Turks

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 1.—An Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says transportation of Turkish troops to the Dardanelles has been interrupted by the operations of a British submarine cruising in front of Constantinople.

Turks Claim Repulse Of Right Wing Attack

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 1.—Via London, June 1.—An official announcement today reads: "The enemy on Monday attacked our right wing near Avli-Burnu but they were repulsed. Their losses are estimated at 100 killed, and more dead were observed in the valley. "Monday night the enemy attempted to recapture the trenches lost the previous day in their attempt by a surprise attack. They were repulsed everywhere and lost many in killed. We also took arms and ammunition. "On the front of Sedul Bahr there have been exchanges of artillery and rifle fire."

German Submarine Shelter Found on Asiatic Coast

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 1.—A dispatch to the Times from Mytilene says: "An enemy submarine shelter has been discovered in the vicinity of Ayvalik, on the west coast of Asia Minor, to which place British warships proceeded Sunday. Sixty shots have since been fired from the British ships, leading to the belief that useful work has been accomplished."

and distribution of food to starving Mexicans. The president will confer later with Secretary Garrison on the subject. Reports to the Red Cross and the state department have indicated that food supplies are being shipped out of Mexico to the United States, Cuba and elsewhere.

As an experiment Red Cross food supplies will be sent to American committees, who will form responsible local committees to distribute the food. The dispatch of two carloads of supplies to Monterey will test that method.

Governor Withcomb, of Oregon, has advised the Red Cross he will appeal for aid, and other governors are expected to do the same. The Red Cross appeal quickly.

The Carranza agency today announced receipt of the following from Vera Cruz:

"Carranza through secretary of war and marine has instructed all authorities in the territory controlled by the constitutionalists that they would be supplied cereals and provisions whenever it was necessary for the people to have them. Six thousand tons of wheat were today purchased by the government. The governor of Queretaro wired first chief that his state has sufficient supplies to feed all the southern part of Mexico until next crop. The governor of Guanajuato wires they have a big excess that can be used to supply other localities in the country. The food situation in Mexico is pitiable and Carranza is collecting supplies to meet the situation when the constitutionalists enter the city."

German Note Irresponsible And Inconclusive—Taft

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 1.—Former President William H. Taft, when asked to comment upon the German reply to the American note, said: "If I think the reply of the German government is irresponsible and inconclusive."

To Sleep Well in Summer

Sleep is the most important of the bodily functions, and a disturbed sleep is a most distressing and refreshing sleep impossible. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, a most effective remedy for all ailments, is the only sure road to health and happiness.

You wouldn't go to your office in the morning without washing your face and hands. And yet inside cleanliness is just as important to your well-being. You need to do your work with a clear mind and a healthy body. The conclusion of a distinguished physician is that the waste matter in your system is not kept clean. "Why? Because it is not kept clean. You will find it pleasant to take and effective in action and wholly without any of the bad after effects of most of the laxative and cathartic drugs. It will make you the best for the day. It will keep you in good health and give you a good night's sleep. (Adv.)

Handmade Decorations for the Home

In this day of revivals the old-fashioned burlap comes into great prominence. It is not only new brides including the burlap in their bedroom furnishings, but seasoned housewives are remodeling and refurbishing their homes are taking care to see that it is given a prominent place in the bedroom. All of which means, of course, that there must be appropriate decorations for the burlap.

It would be entirely out of harmony with present-day ideas to have a simple bedroom set and frivolous trimmings, hence simplicity is the keynote of the latest burlap scarfs. Embroidery is the accepted form of ornamenting household linens, and the clever needleworker never selects a pattern which she cannot appropriate to several different purposes.

For cultured simplicity nothing could be more admirable than the pattern shown here. It consists of baskets of florals, trailing garlands of foliage and small blooms. The stems of the garlands are worked with outline stitch, while the flowers are developed in satin dots or eyelet embroidery; or the petals may be in satin dots, while the centers are in eyelet. Solid satin stitch is used for the leaves, but there are innovations to be put in upon this idea also. One half of the leaf may be of solid satin, while the other is in seed stitch. The latter method means that one is using fine batiste for the scarf, because seed stitch appears to advantage on soft linens.

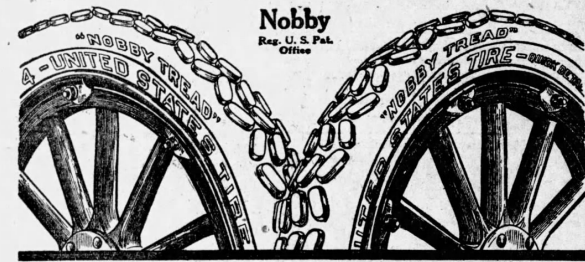

Bureau scarfs for cottages and bungalows are delightful made of a rather heavy creamy linen, embroidered in the simplest of stitches in bright shades of green, blue and yellow. The baskets are worked in lattice stitch. This is a variety of lattice, but one that is exceedingly simple to achieve. The damask stitch, which closely resembles the lattice, is also appropriate for working the baskets, being especially designed for filling large spaces in conventional signs and baskets. Draw the thread straight or slant across the design; but be careful to make even distances; but the entire space of the basket with this stitch; then make the same lines with the thread across them, and where the lines meet catch the thread down with a small or large cross-stitch. In the lattice stitch the lines are slanted.

The embroidery pattern illustrated and described herein, together with 400 others covering all possible uses, are included in the "Innovation Embroidery Pattern Outfit" now being presented by this newspaper. It is explained elsewhere in these columns.

The dots in the baskets simulating flowers are effective worked in French knots when colored, silk or are employed to work up the pattern.

This border is very effective done entirely in white, the effect of a pillow case. In fact, an entire bedroom set worked with this floral spray would be dainty. One of the great advantages of the pattern is that it works up quickly, even though only a few hours are spent upon it daily.

America's Final Word.

Berlin's reply to the American note regarding the Lusitania outrage is in the manner of a quibbling lawyer who trifles with truth and talks merely for delay. It ignores the principles of justice and humanity on which our nation's demands are based. It offers no disavowal of acts of which any Government having a sense of honor would be ashamed, no reparation for the trampling of American rights and the slaughter of American citizens, no promise that these crimes shall not be repeated. It attempts, instead, a shuffling defense of piracy and murder, and seeks to drag into interminable controversy an established claim that demands immediate settlement.

There is but one condition on which this issue can remain a subject of diplomatic correspondence, and that is that Germany suspend its submarine lawlessness while negotiations are in progress. If there is to be continued parity, the United States must be assured that in the meantime there shall be no repetition of the Gulfstream, the Lusitania and the Nebraska incidents. Otherwise the neutral rights of this nation and the safety of its citizens at sea will go unprotected. If we are cooly to discuss these crimes shall not be repeated. It attempts, instead, a shuffling defense of piracy and murder, and seeks to drag into interminable controversy an established claim that demands immediate settlement.

Two weeks elapsed between the receipt of the American note at Berlin and the German Government's reply, two weeks of daily peril to our commerce and to hundreds of our people who were engaged on peaceful and legitimate errands. Within that interim, American merchantmen, the Nebraska, was torpedoed, and the fact that she and her crew were not destroyed was a matter of lucky chance rather than care on the part of the Kaiser's submarine. If there is another exchange of notes and another fortnight's delay, what reason have we to expect that another American ship, or several others, will not be attacked? If Germany has her way, she will postpone this issue from month to month until the war's end, meanwhile expressing perfunctory regret over the losses she inflicts upon American property and life.

That these dilatory tactics will not be tolerated, our Government's note of May the thirteenth made clear. The President demanded, in effect, that Germany disavow the acts complained of, that it make reparation, "so far as reparation is possible for injuries without measure," and that it take "immediate steps" to prevent the recurrence of anything "so obviously subversive" of the principles of civilization and humanity. In a case like this, "immediate steps" are the only steps that count. Where cargoes of merchandise are seized or detained, the complainants can afford to wait a reasonable time for diplomatic adjustment and for recompense. But when human life is at stake, when vessels with neutrals and noncombatants aboard are in danger of being blown to destruction without a moment's warning, long-drawn negotiations become a criminal farce.

If, therefore, Germany wishes to debate the question of sinking peaceful merchantmen, of killing neutrals and noncombatants, and of killing defenseless women and children, she must cease those practices before the United States will listen to her sophistries. Protracted discussion in these circumstances is impossible. There can be but one other friendly note from Washington to Berlin, unless Berlin promptly awakes to a sense of its own responsibility and of America's determination. The next word must be the final word, so far as the United States is concerned.

This does not mean that in the event our nation is forced to act, it will act necessarily in terms of war. A severance of diplomatic relations with Germany and a seizure of German vessels now sheltered in American harbors would be appropriate and powerful measures. It is earnestly to be hoped that this necessity will not arise. But the limit of forbearance has been reached. The time for parleying is past. If the German Government will not understand friendly and reasonable words, it must be made to understand positive and forceful acts.

The rout of the Turks might be termed a Turkey trot.

Wherein Atlanta Schools Are Better Than Before

In his stimulating essay, "How to Live on Twenty-Four Hours a Day," Arnold Bennett has shown that a wisely ordered program of living will enable a man to do more work and better work in seven hours than he could do otherwise in eight or ten. It was on this broad truth, borne out by common experience in every field of endeavor, that the Atlanta Board of Education reorganized the system of studies in our Grammar schools and reduced the length of the course from eight years to seven years. The Board was not venturing upon an experiment. It was following the country's best educational thought and example. It acted in the interest of efficiency as well as economy, and above all in the interest of the children themselves.

Of the total number of children entering our city's schools, only about five per cent completed the eighth grade; that is a matter of record. The majority dropped out at the fifth or sixth grade. Further, the total enrollment in the High schools is only about seven per cent of that in the Grammar schools. Evidently, then, it was very important that during their term in the Grammar-schools the pupils be used to the best possible advantage. It was largely to this end that the Board determined upon the readjustments it made. It sought to give the average pupil more education for the length of time he had to spend at school.

This was accomplished not by any process of crowding or forcing but by a remodelling of the courses of study on broader and more flexible lines. It was accomplished also by reducing the number of pupils in each room to a maximum of forty. Manifestly that is the largest number to whom one teacher can give personal, individual attention. It is the largest number compatible with discipline and health. The fact is, it would be far better to have only thirty or twenty pupils in a room; and in the course of time, it is to be hoped, that ideal will be attained.

Through these changes, the teacher is enabled to do more efficient work, and the children are enabled to learn more rapidly and also more thoroughly. If the school plant and equipment are not adequate at every point to meet these conditions, that is no fault of the new system. The fact that double sessions have been necessary at some of the schools this year does not show that we should return to the old, foolish plan of packing fifty or sixty children into one room. It simply shows that we should provide enough room to accommodate all the children at a single session. Our standards should not be lowered to meet physical deficiencies; rather, physical deficiencies should be remedied to meet our standards.

There are a few persons, it is true, who will always oppose every forward step in the public school system. Their idea of the seven-year Grammar school course is like the Mexican's idea of the railroad. A civil engineer, engaged in building a railway in Mexico, was trying to show a native what benefits the railway would bring.

"How long," he asked, "does it now take you to carry your produce to market?"

"With a mule, it takes three days," the Mexican answered.

"There you are!" exclaimed the engineer. "When the railway is finished and in operation you will be able to take your produce to market and return home in the same day."

"But, señor," came the puzzled reply, "what shall I do with the other two days?"

Opponents of the seven-year Grammar school course seem woefully disturbed that pupils are now enabled to gain a year in schooling. The idea that this year means economy in the life and opportunities of the child, that it means economy to the schools and the city and that the readjustments whereby this saving becomes possible means efficiency in education—these ideas are strangely overlooked. We believe, however, that the rank and file of thoughtful parents and citizens appreciate the improvements which have been effected, and stand squarely behind the Board. This does not mean that deficiencies in the school plant are condoned, or ought ever to be condoned. But it does mean that each problem should be treated upon its own merits, and that good work should be encouraged.

The Board has inaugurated other helpful changes, such as the establishment of the unit system of studies in the High Schools and the revitalizing of all the courses of study. For these things, the Board should be commended and should be loyally supported.

"Germany calls out her final reserves." She'll need them.

Austria probably explains the retreat on the score of strategy.

We fully expected the Petrograd pessimist would come through again.

Mexico is respectfully reminding that the European war is entirely sufficient.

The old-fashioned man, who said the war would end in three years now predicts six months.

Germany, it appears, is willing to do anything for America short of admitting she is wrong.

Germany can't understand how a nation and a president can be humane and still be powerful.

Editorial Echoes

Now what general will become immortal by blowing up St. Mark's and dynamiting Pisa's leaning tower?—Boston Advertiser.

Surely, of all men living, it is not for Dr. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, Chancellor of the German Empire, to reproach Italy for lack of faith in Germany's guarantee of the concessions proposed by Austria. Yet the Imperial Chancellor said to the Reichstag:

"Italian statesmen have no right to measure trustworthiness in other nations by the same measure as their own loyalty to the treaty. Germany's word guaranteed the concessions."

Germany's word, or Prussia's word prior to the establishment of the German Imperial system, guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium and the inviolability of Belgium soil.

And it was this same Dr. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, Chancellor of the German Empire, who on the fourth of last August to Sir Edward Goschen at Berlin declared that dishonored guarantee as "just a piece of paper."—New York Sun.

Bright Thoughts Make Bright Eyes.

BY H. ADDINGTON BAUCE.

Every woman ought to know that brightness of eyes is in direct proportion to the rapidity with which the blood circulates through the veins.

Clear, bright eyes are always an asset, especially in the way of enhancing one's personal attractiveness. This is so generally recognized that some foolish women go to the extent of putting drops in their eyes to give them a sparkling quality.

By so doing they in the end defeat the purpose they have in view. For a course of continued use of this drug on their general system is such as to produce conditions that decrease the limpidity of their eyes, and even injure their own power of vision.

Everything which promotes the circulation also promotes brightness and clearness of eye. Everything which lowers the circulation deadens the eye. Excessive fatigue of this kind tends to the same end, and so have such emotional states as grief, worry, fear, despair, hatred, envy, jealousy.

So true is this that a person yielding habitually to such states cannot possibly have bright eyes, no matter what physical precautions he or she may take. She may go to bed when the chickens do, and get up when the sun rises, and take a proper amount of daily exercise. Nevertheless, so long as her mind is filled with depressing thoughts, the circulation of the blood will be impaired and her eyes will consequently be lacking in brightness.

On the other hand, the cultivation of favorable emotional states—of hope, cheerfulness, confidence, and the like—has the effect of accelerating the blood's circulation. This has been demonstrated within recent years by innumerable experiments carried out in the physical laboratories of universities and medical schools.

And with this increased rapidity of circulation increased clearness and brightness of eye are sure to come.

Accordingly, the remedy to be adopted by all who feel that their eyes are not as bright as they should be may be expressed in this simple formula: Avoid dissipation of all sorts, leading to excessive physical fatigue, and avoid allowing your mind to dwell on depressing ideas. Cultivate cheerfulness, hopefulness, and a sense of the future.

Remember always that BRIGHT THOUGHTS MAKE BRIGHT EYES.

NO. 202—TUCCSON.

Tucson is a desert city that literally found its fortune under its feet.

For many years Tucson was not much more than a cattle camp little more than a bunch of huts and a few stores.

And then some one thought of digging for water, and he had the courage to keep on digging through dry sand until ninety feet below the surface, he found cool, flowing water.

Now the Tucson country is becoming famous for its production of Egyptian cotton, which is of special value because it is used in making automobile tires. Unusual richness of the soil and warm climate and a long growing season, together with the new-found sources of water, are leading to great prosperity.

Engines, have combined to make the country around Tucson one of great agricultural possibilities. The desert is being transformed into a fertile land. Its population has quadrupled, it has established a street car service and then a jitney bus line, and has department stores and paved streets and a modern university, and lots of other perquisites of prosperity which the old timers never hoped to see in that apparently lifeless desert.

Another industry of some importance at Tucson is that of caring for the health of easterners, for the high, dry climate is balm for all tubercular troubles. Many a western town has learned the value of monied easterners' search of health in the desert schools of the accordingly. Tucson, with its tent city and a number of modern sanitariums, is an excellent example of how health-giving climate may be capitalized.

A touch of the picturesque remains in the Mexican quarter of Tucson. Here the manilla and sombrero are worn, the old adobe walls and life still goes on slowly as it did before Tucson found the rivers under its feet.

The Fairy Ring.

Let us laugh and let us sing.
Dancing in a merry ring.
We'll be fairies in the green
Sporting round the fairy ring.

Like the seasons of the year,
Round we circle in a sphere.
It'll be summer, you'll be spring,
Dancing in a fairy ring.

Harry will be winter wild,
Little Charlie autumn mild,
Summer, autumn, winter, spring,
Dancing in a fairy ring.

Spring and summer glide away,
Autumn comes with tresses gray,
Winter hand in hand with spring,
Dancing in a fairy ring.

Faster, faster round we go,
While our cheeks like roses glow,
Free as birds upon the wing,
Dancing in a fairy ring.

Quips and Quiddities

Mrs. Williams, who had recently returned from abroad, was attending an afternoon tea which was given in her honor.

"And did you really go to Rome?" asked the hostess.

"I really don't know, my dear," replied Mrs. Williams. "You see, my husband always bought the tickets."

A party of young women visited an observatory to have a peep through the monster telescope at the new comet. The astronomer conducted them to the instrument, and they looked through in turns.

"Oh, isn't it charming, heavenly, enchanting, wonderful!" etc., ad libitum.

After a while the astronomer observed:

"Now, ladies, I shall remove the cover and place the instrument in position in which you will allow me."

Stranger—"Your town seems awful dead. Had a scourge of any kind?"

Citizen—"No."

"No smallpox or yellow fever?"

"No."

"No floods or famine?"

"No."

"Well, what ails your town this year?"

"Nothing ails it this year, but a boom struck it last year."

It was in a country town and the traveling company was playing "The Frog." The comedian was seated at the front of the stage and the audience was very tired.

"A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse!" roared the actor.

"If you quit now you'll be able to horse the tent-trolley!" shouted a loud voice.

At the railway station a nice old lady left the train and got into a cab. The cabman said, "Gimme your bag, lady, and I'll take it to the top of the hill."

"No, indeed!" answered the dear old lady, "that poor hoss has enough to pull. I'll jist hol' it on my lap."

AMERICAN GEMS

BY FREDERICK J. HARKIN.

By cutting off importations of precious and semi-precious stones, the European war is expected to move a stimulus to the production of native gems in America, which is one of our most precious and least known industries. The commercial success of any variety of gem is always at least partly dependent upon the demand for it. Thus during 1913 no less than forty varieties of precious and semi-precious stones were produced in the United States; and yet, so small was the quantity of most of them that their value was only $121,000, while during the same year our imports of gems reached the tremendous total of $45,431,000. Thus a truly startling amount of money has been spent abroad for gems which could have been obtained at home, and in all probability will mean that at least some of it will be spent for American gems.

One of the oldest precious stone industries in America is that of turquoise, which has been mined since Long before Columbus discovered America. Turquoise was taken from the mines of Arizona and New Mexico. Not many years ago a prospector in the Bumble Mountains near Flagstaff, Ariz., upon some large excavations, with great piles of earth beside them, upon which grew the cactus and Spanish bayonet, found the remains of old stone hammers and other primitive implements which had evidently been used in making the excavations. Upon closer examination of the stones, it was found that they were turquoise, and the fact was established that these excavations were mines which had been worked by the Spaniards long before the Spaniards came.

These Bumble Mountain prospects have since then been the site of a very profitable industry. Turquoise is found in great quantities in the Bumble Mountains. A considerable quantity of very fine turquoise was taken out, however, most of it going to the high-class New York market. Since the discovery of the mines, turquoise has been taken from these mines. The mining operations are carried on from an immense cut some 200 yards long, 100 feet wide and 75 feet deep. The turquoise is found in a matrix of whitish rock. It is broken out in rough pieces by the miners, and then lapidaries by the pound. The prices run from one dollar to a hundred dollars per pound, according to the demand and the quality of the turquoise. The turquoise is found in the Bumble Mountains, and is a pound of turquoise he may find a single stone that is worth more than the price of the whole, or he may find an ounce of a pound to pay the price of the cutting.

The immense production of turquoise which came from these mines soon after they were opened caused the market for the cheaper grades of turquoise to drop, but there is always an adequate demand for stones of fine quality. These New Mexico mines are only one vicinity among many in the United States in which these beautiful stones are found. In the Bumble Mountains, in Coconino county, Ariz., is another place where abundant evidences have been found of ancient work and where some very valuable stones have been found in modern times. Turquoise has also been found in California.

BY GILSON GARDNER.

On Board S. S. FINLAND, En Route Panama to San Diego, May 16.—Going through the Panama Canal is like sailing through two moderate sized beautiful artificial lakes. One is about eighteen miles long; the other about nine miles. The waters are placid, the shores are lined with tropical growth. Sometimes they are distant and sometimes a few feet from the steamer. When close, the water is placid, the shores are lined with tropical growth. Sometimes they are distant and sometimes a few feet from the steamer. When close, the water is placid, the shores are lined with tropical growth.

Of course there are the locks, like stairways at each end of the lake—at first three big steps to get up into the first lake, 85 feet above the Atlantic; then two steps down to get into the smaller lake; and then three steps down to the sea level. The locks are the keynotes of the locks. All moves like clockwork. The big ship slips into the cement tank; the states close behind with a jolt. The water rises and wells up mysteriously from beneath, and the happy lounge negroes carrying the hawser line look up and smile. Nobody makes a move. Everything is done by the magic of the own accoutrements. Mother whose husband is a canal employ comes down with the baby in her arms and watches the ship through, much as the country dweller goes to the station to see the evening accommodation arrive and depart. The baby wails at the passengers and the passengers think of the baby as being a little sick.

The Cuba cut is still difficult of passage. The dredgers and blasters were at work when we went through and there were five minutes when the Finland was on the bottom and the captain was wondering whether it would get off. The captain's own idea after leaving New York was to get past the ditch. So at Panama (Balboa and Ancon) we were anchored for a day and a day, and the passengers went ashore and bought Panama hats, ponce silk, Palm Beach suits, and things to eat. Some stopped at the government hotel, there are no more as the country dweller goes to the Uncle Sam as hotel keeper. It was clean, cool, comfortable, well appointed with good food at reasonable rates.

The heat at the Canal Zone was actually less than before arriving and after leaving there. Soon after leaving New York blankets and wraps are discarded and for many days the weather is just what is needed. The Gulf of Mexico water was 86 Fahrenheit and the air much hotter.

Before these trips are a complete success from the point of view of the pleasure-seeker (a majority of our passengers were such) several things will have to be done. There must be more stops and more time at the stops.

There is only one way to get the better of a man, said Van Thunston in his book, "The Art of the Game." "The Game Book." "And that is to understand him better than he does you."

He goes on to explain that this is equally true of a friend and an enemy, and that there isn't after all much difference between the two.

This is a most searching shaft. It pierces the very marrow of contention, and shows why we quarrel, why we hate, why we misunderstand.

Almost all repulsions between two people are caused by lack of imagination. We see only ourselves, understand only our own feelings and views, and know nothing of the other person's mind.

If any one will sit down and strive to transfer himself into his friend's or his enemy's breast, to grasp the other's mind, to understand the other's hostility that separates them is unreal, a mist, may be.

"Put yourself in his place." There never was a better rule.

Another will try to make real to ourselves the state of another's mind, instead of trying to impose our notions upon him, it will make short shrift of disputes. There is no more use in sullying another's mind than there is in one nation conquering another. A conquered territory is an expense and a continual source of disturbance. England has been a great power because of her ability to let her government herself, by dealing with her as a separate unit, than she would by taking over her government. As the whole formia, Nevada, in Texas and in small quantities in several other states.

Quite in contrast to the turquoise industry is that of mining sapphires, which has been carried to Montana upon a considerable scale. The existence of these gems in the United States was not even suspected fifteen years ago. Then one day a prospector was looking for placer gold on Dry Cottonwood creek in Deer Lodge county, Montana, found several small and very beautiful gems of various colors in the bottom of his pan. They were quickly identified by lapidaries as variegated sapphires. In the same state, on Yellowstone, in Park county, there were found still more valuable deposits of pure blue sapphires. A few years ago, several companies were formed and placer operations were begun upon a considerable scale. The blue sapphires are always in demand, as gems, while the variegated sapphires are chiefly valuable for the manufacture of watch bearings. For this purpose they are cut into twenty-five cents to one dollar an ounce, but the market is limited. Thus when the production in Montana was at its height, more variegated sapphires were produced in one year than could be sold in two.

There is a large market for the variegated sapphires in Sweden, but the turquoise industry is in competition with those from Ceylon, which at present are being more cheaply produced. Thus the American sapphire industry must work out improved methods of production before it can grow very large. There has, however, been a steady production of sapphires from Montana for many years, the product in 1913 being worth $225,431. This is a considerable amount of our total gem production for that year.

Emeralds of the finest quality have been mined for the past six years near Shelby, N. C. It is said that over twenty years ago a couple of very fine emeralds were found upon a plantation in that vicinity. They were kept by persons living there, but attracted almost no attention. Some years later, a man who knew their value and the stones and tried to discover where they had been obtained, but there was no one who remembered the location. A systematic search of the plantation where the stones were found, however, had been found. Upon his farm, upon a single hillside, were found a dozen fine gems were found, lying upon the surface of the ground. The largest of them was an inch by three-eighths of an inch, and weighed about one-half ounce. The stones were worth as much as $25 a carat. Subsequently, some systematic mining has been carried on at this point, and a number of fine gems have been produced.

Perhaps the only American gem industry which is known to the general public is that of diamonds in Arkansas. Here again the first discovery was purely accidental. A farmer who believed that the diamonds were upon his farm, set out to make a careful study of his land. He found two diamonds in the day. This discovery caused considerable excitement for a time, and several companies were formed to carry on diamond mining operations. Diamonds of the quality, including some stones worth as much as $1,000, have been obtained, but the industry cannot be said to be really established. The diamonds have also been reported from time to time from a number of other states, and in California there have been some mining operations.

North Carolina also has the honor of having produced the only American rubies. In Macon county, some gems of fine quality, and weighing three or four carats, and some heavy hydraulic mining operations have been carried on.

In 1909 rubies were discovered in Humboldt county, Nevada. Several claims to the rubies, of various sizes, and red opals of excellent quality were taken.

THROUGH THE PANAMA CANAL

The stopping places. A stop at Jamaica will no doubt be found to be desirable and at least a day and night in the Canal Zone, giving time to see the interesting city of Panama and the canal locks, and the opportunity to have laundry done should be included. The journey up the Pacific Coast would be broken by a stop somewhere, or at least it might be made one enough to permit the passengers to make a stop. One of the earlier boats did take the shore route and passengers booked for the Finland were shown at Antwerp after their arrival. The passengers were told of the attractions of the coast. By some coincidence the same letter was read at the steamship offices in Boston, New York and Washington.

Finland, a small steamer, was a most interesting sight, and most of the time no land was visible. Shortly before leaving Panama Saturday afternoon word came that the Lusitania had been torpedoed. Whether or not the report was true, or what was the loss of life unknown until the following Friday morning when the wireless brought an answer to a message sent from the Finland to the Lusitania. For nearly a week while sailing up the Pacific Coast of Central America and Mexico the wireless had no land stations with which to communicate. The wireless was less effective in the tropics. What is called "static" settles down in the hot, moist air and seems to muffle the other waves. A machine which is capable of reaching over a distance of 1,000 miles, can reach hardly more than fifty. The high volcanic mountains such as those along the Mexican and Central American coast also act as a barrier to the wireless on the other side of them. So the operators say.

What the ancients would have regarded as a "portent" was viewed by the Lusitania as a "disaster." Sunday evening May 9, suddenly the eastern heavens were lighted up with a glow as if a rocket, a hundred times brighter than any human rocket, had burst in the evening in southern waters, while the Finland was out of sight of land two chimney smokestacks ahead. They were so identified by the secretary of the Audubon Society who chance to be among the passengers. He said they were migrating north and would probably take a ride on the boat until morning. He also identified a petrel from the Massachusetts coast.

A Vacation That Shows a Profit

Are you really looking for physical benefit as part of the return from your spring vacation?

Are you taking a few weeks off for fun--or for the end that you may feel better and work with greater ease.

In the latter case, you can accomplish much more by taking your vacation under competent scientific direction. If winter's tasks have left you fagged and exhausted, try a month of genuine rest at the great Health Resort at Battle Creek.

The outdoor sports, the baths, the pleasant social life of a great community give the elements of change and recreation found at any resort; the careful adaptation of these resources to your individual needs affords you the greatest benefit that can be secured from them.

Early spring is delightful at Battle Creek. The golf links are excellent, the tennis courts are ready, outdoor gymnasium work is beginning, the four big swimming pools invite you. Carefully regulated, but delicious diet, plenty of fresh air and instructions in the essentials of health building all make for genuine rest and improvement in your physical condition.

Your vacation shows a profit, instead of a loss.

Many busy people come to Battle Creek for one month's rest each year and claim that they can do more work in the remaining eleven months than they could have crowded into twelve without this period of scientific rest.

The Persians had a proverb: "The days spent in the chase are not counted in the lifetime."

In the same way--the month spent in Battle Creek is a month of pure physical profit.

VETERANS AND THEIR SONS LEDEGE WILSON SUPPORT

Sentiments Expressed by the Speakers at Richmond Reunion Are Applauded

(By Associated Press.)
RICHMOND, Va., June 1.—Pledges of support to the president of the United States "in these perilous times," and prayers for righteous peace of the world, characterized the opening here today of the twenty-fifth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans. To the tunes of "Dixie" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" and "Stonewall Jackson's Way," thousands of the wearers of the gray from all parts of the Southland marched through the gaily bedecked streets of the old capital of the Confederacy to the city auditorium where they were welcomed to the Old Dominion by Governor H. C. Stuart, of Virginia.

Inspired as they filed into the hall by hundreds of "Stars and Bars" waved aloft by a concourse of boys and girls, the aged survivors of the armies of the Confederacy, and their sons, who called themselves hoarse, later displaying boundless enthusiasm at the sight of a black-clad little woman, the widow of J. B. Stuart, a cavalry hero of the South, who was presented to the assembly.

At the outset, of the ceremonies the spirit of the time was reflected in the invocation delivered by Chaplain W. Bachman, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Introduced by J. Thompson Brown, commander of the Virginia division, who called the convention to order. With bowed heads and words of approval the gray received the chaplain's appeal for "Blessings Upon Our Country. Our Chief Executive and authority, and the petition that the American people, 'was a nation with faces of flint for righteousness and the peace of the world.'

Simultaneous with the veterans' reunion is being held the twenty-fifth annual reunion of the Sons of Confederate Veterans and before them also was an echo of the conflict in Europe and a pledge of loyalty to the president of the United States, sounded by Clarence J. Owens, of Washington, D. C., was roundly cheered. The speaker pleaded that peace might be preserved for America and declared "but peace can be purchased too dearly, too. It is bought too dearly when it is obtained at the expense of national honor and national justice."

"We are people of peace. But if in our wisdom our statesmen and our great chief executive in the White House, it should be decided that our national honor is compromised by the further maintenance of peace, and if the call to arms should then follow, I say that no part of the country will rally more wholeheartedly to the support of the president and his policies than the sons of the men who fifty years ago took up arms in the south's cause."

In welcoming the veterans Governor Stuart pictured the "new Richmond" which has arisen from the smoldering ruins of the war. "The four years of siege and suffering," he said, "with the last shot ringing in their ears, survivors of the conflict were laying on the ashes of buried hopes the foundation of a nobler and steeper city in which we now assemble. With sublime patience and unflinching faith the Anglo-Saxon has today regained his birthright in the land of his fathers. Here we meet in reunion of heart and soul in the bonds of a common heritage to uncover once more in the presence of chieftains who live again in splendid effluence of bronze to renew our vows of fidelity to those who gave more than life because they gave all to dedicate a Confederate memorial institute and to erect a monument to the immortal Stonewall Jackson."

WELCOME ADDRESSES.
Addresses of welcome also were delivered by Mayor George Annin, of Richmond; Judge D. J. Tyler, for the veterans of Virginia, and John W. Hale, of Rome, Ga., on behalf of the Sons of Veterans, following which the convention was turned over to General George P. Harrison, of Alabama, designated to preside by General Bennett H. Young, the commander-in-chief, who was detained at Cleveland, on account of illness. Resolutions of sympathy for the commander-in-chief were voted by the convention after rousing cheers had welcomed his message to his comrades, read by Judge George L. Christian, of Richmond.

A stirring incident of the day was the presentation to the convention of the only two living Confederate governors, James B. McCreary, of Kentucky, and Nat. E. Harris, governor-elect of Georgia. As the veterans stood with clasped hands upon the platform they were given a tremendous ovation from the wearers of the gray. Following a business session of the convention, addresses were delivered by Dr. Henry W. Battle, who made an appeal for the end of war among nations, and by General W. W. Green, of Arkansas, who paid tribute to Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy.

For the reception of the Confederacy, Richmond is arrayed as never before. Every street presents a lane, walled with mingled "Stars and Stripes" and "Stars and Bars." All day the crowds of the city are tested to capacity.

At Camp Henry C. Stuart, established at the fair grounds, nearly 50,000 veterans slept last night.

JOHN K. OTTLEY IS JUDGE OF CAVALRY HORSE SHOW
Troopers of the Eleventh Are Holding Exhibition at Fort Oglethorpe

John K. Ottley, Atlanta banker and horseman, who served as judge of the recent cavalry horse show in Atlanta, and Lieutenant Ored Cox, United States army, who took an important part in the charity show, are joint judges of the horse show being held by the eleventh Cavalry, U. S. A., at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., near Chattanooga.

This show began Monday and will last through Wednesday. Considerable interest is being evinced in it by large numbers of visitors from Chattanooga and other nearby cities. The show is an annual event at the fort.

Cavalrymen from this fort visited Atlanta several years ago and took a prominent part in the horse show being held here at the time. Their spectacular riding on that occasion created most favorable comment.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR TO DINE AT EAST LAKE
Members of the choir of All Saints' Episcopal church will be given a dinner and dance at the East Lake club Thursday, June 3, instead of at Brookhaven club, as at first planned. Work of remodeling the Brookhaven club made it impracticable to accommodate the choir, about thirty-five of whom will attend.

POLICE PROBE HAS FAILED TO DEVELOP SENSATIONS

Committee Finds No Cause for Censuring Chief, It Is Said

The police investigating committee on the probe of the department Monday night by examining Chief I. L. Beavers for about two hours, and will meet once more Wednesday night to formulate its report.

Nothing on which severe censure for Chief Beavers or for the department could be based has been developed by the probe, who have been in session intermittently for about two months. It was stated Tuesday by one of the members of the committee.

As a result it is expected the report of the probe committee will consist mainly of several recommendations, which, in the opinion of the committee, might increase the efficiency of the department.

Commissioner Robert C. Clarke, the only member of the probe committee openly against the chief, stated Tuesday that he did not believe a minority report would be made in view of the character of the evidence submitted during the probe.

Chief Beavers was before the probe committee for two hours Monday night, most of the time answering questions propounded by Commissioner Clarke. The chief, who was grilled in a good-natured manner, reiterated his belief in the efficiency of the department of which he is head, declaring the service rendered the city by the department is most excellent when the handiwork of funds and lack of a sufficiently large number of patrolmen is considered.

PLAY BY TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH SOCIETY
A real, live show, including minstrel and vaudeville stunts, is going to be put on at the Atlanta theatre Thursday evening, June 3, by a real, live Atlanta organization, the Telephone and Telegraph society. The participants have been rehearsing faithfully and now have practically everything in readiness for their promise to be one of the most original and amusing affairs of this nature ever given by home talents.

The organization contains more than a thousand members from the male employees of the local telephone and telegraph offices, and for several years past it has presented entertainments of a similar nature. A small admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to help defray expenses.

Had Pellagra Seven Years; Thanks God He's Cured
Cowards, S. C.—David G. Pate, of this place, writes: "I am glad to say to you, after waiting forty days, that I still feel like I am cured of pellagra. I had this disease for the last seven years. The fourth day after beginning your medicine I went back to work and have been able to do my work ever since. I thank God for your remedy."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 2002, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure. (Adv.)

FOUR OF THE GREENBRIER'S CREW REACH NEW YORK

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, June 1.—Four of the crew of the American steamer, Greenbrier, sunk April 3 by a mine in the North sea, were brought today to New York by the American steamship Brooklyn from Bremen. The officers and other members of the Greenbrier's crew reached New York some time ago aboard other vessels.

BRITISH WOMEN MAKING WAR MUNITIONS NOW

(By Associated Press.)
BARROW, Eng., June 1.—At the Vickers Sons and Maxim works 400 women employed in the manufacture of munitions have given such satisfaction that the firm has decided immediately to employ an additional thousand.
It is expected that the example of Vickers Sons and Maxim will be actively followed by other firms.

A Mistake Made by Many

Don't wait for rheumatism to indicate diseased kidneys. When you suffer pains and aches by day and sleep disturbing bladder weakness by night, feel tired, nervous and run down, the kidneys and bladder should be treated to healthy, strong and regular action. It is a mistake to postpone treatment. Foley Kidney Pills put the kidneys in sound, healthy condition and keep them active and strong. Begin taking today. Good results follow the first dose. Sold everywhere.—(Adv.)

Complete Embroidery Outfits to Women Readers by

The initial announcement of the free distribution of Embroidery Outfits to women readers of this newspaper

CERTAINLY STRUCK A RESPONSIVE CHORD

in feminine circles as is evidenced by the constant application for these excellent and timely gifts. And no wonder, for the contains more than 400 wanted patterns for every purpose to which embroidery can be adapted. Each design can be transferred from six to fifteen times—the result of a new discovery which makes these patterns at least 10 times more valuable than those made by other processes. No hot iron required.

In order that every reader may be fully equipped to begin work at once, we will present, as a gift, to each person taking the 400-pattern outfit for 68 cents, a complete working outfit, consisting of a six-inch pair of embroidery hoops, netting of assorted embroidery needles, bone bodkin and stiletto, together with an illustrated instruction folder, showing and describing all the latest embroidery stitches.

For 68 cents you get enough patterns to last you 68 years, and you need never buy a pattern for any purpose from another source as long as you live. Mailed anywhere for 75 cents.

The Habersham Players

Of the new organizations constantly being formed for the artistic betterment of the city, none is more promising than the committee of the Joseph Habersham chapter D. A. R., to produce plays from time to time under the name of the "Habersham Players." The great amount of talent in the chapter gives assurance that this little club will be a distinct interest felt here, and that Atlanta will have an amateur organization on a permanent basis whose efforts will rank with the best of other cities.

Among the members are the following: Mrs. Ulric Atkinson, Mrs. Hamilton Brooks, Mrs. Phinley Calhoun, Mrs. Carolyn Cobb, Mrs. Zoe Coburn, Mrs. Clarence Haverly, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, Mrs. W. L. Peck, Miss Regina Bamby, Mrs. Henry B. Scott, Mrs. W. L. Thalheimer, Miss Cleveland Zahner.

Parlor performances will be given for the pleasure of the members, and an occasional public appearance. The club makes its bow to the public with a presentation of Shakespeare's enchanting comedy "As You Like It," which has been under rehearsal for some time, and which will be given on Thursday afternoon, June 10, on the lawn at the residence of Mrs. M. McKenzie, at Brookwood.

A full rehearsal of the play Monday evening, revealed that it would run complete, incidental music, wrestling match and every detail in two hours.

Miss Carolyn Cobb is the director of the club. Mrs. W. L. Peck business manager, and Miss Cleveland Zahner secretary.

HAMMOND REPRESENTS

TELEGRAPH-CHRONICLE
Managing Editor of Augusta Paper Takes Charge of Atlanta Bureau

John W. Hammond, managing editor of the Augusta Chronicle, has come to Atlanta to take charge of the Atlanta bureau of the Macon Telegraph and Augusta Chronicle which position was held for several years by the late Mr. John C. Reese.

Mr. Hammond has been actively engaged in newspaper work for the past eighteen years, most of which time he has been on the Chronicle. Starting as a reporter, he rose to state news editor, city editor, news editor and managing editor.

Mr. Hammond's headquarters will be in the Kimball House, where the Atlanta correspondent of the Chronicle and Telegraph has been quartered since the bureau started years ago by Major A. Hardy Uim, now executive secretary to Governor John M. Slaton.

Mr. Hammond has a host of friends in and out of the newspaper profession who wish him success in his new field.

WEATHER MAN PROMISES
SUNSHINE FOR WEDNESDAY

Several Days of Fine June
Weather Are in Prospect,
He Says

After twenty-four hours of rain and cold, Tuesday continued cold and drizzly with an aggravating, bone-piercing drizzle to make things worse. But there's hope ahead—the weather man predicts Wednesday will usher in several days of fine, hot, seasonable June sunshine.

The mercury Tuesday morning registered 57 degrees, and it was so wet later in the day that the sun was not seen. Fifty-seven is a very unusual temperature for June, the weather man says, but it's not a record—it has been colder. By noon the mercury went up to 62.

The rain is expected to last all day, says the forecaster, but he promises that Tuesday night will be a fine one for sleeping and that the sun will be shining in the morning.

The weather bureau states that the whole of the southeastern section is just as wet and chilly as Atlanta.

An Underpriced Distribution That Encourages and Promotes the Commendable Habit of Economizing

Year after year we have gone wider and wider afield for offerings that would serve more efficiently to make the Annual June Sale an economy event of greater helpfulness, not alone in prices, but in the broader variety of articles embraced in the stocks. It is an occasion that has gained a reputation peculiar to itself—distinctive, individual—unlike and better than the others, because of the more liberal distribution of economies over a broader field of action. No "job" merchandise, nor "seconds," nor flimsy, trashy things of any description are here for your choosing.

Good taste commands simplicity, and Good Faith commands Economy—Both are Wonderfully Answered in this
